

Website's Altered Images Conjure Up a Surreal London

Anna Davis

GUARDSMEN with towerblocks on their heads, the London Eye with pods flying in all directions and the ghostly image of St Paul's Cathedral before it was ravaged by the Great Fire of London... These are some of the surreal pictures that feature on the Londonist website. It invites its visitors to send in digitally altered images of classic scenes in the capital.

In the doctored photograph of the band of the Welsh Guards, the soldiers appear to have exchanged their regular bearskins for a series of futuristic Norman Foster "Gherkin" office blocks. Another picture imagines the view from the Millennium Bridge if the original St Paul's Cathedral had not been destroyed by the Great Fire in 1666. The ghost of the ill-fated building rises above the cathedral designed by Christopher Wren in 1668. The picture's creator, Matt Brown, said: "My original intention was to superimpose the old St Paul's as though it was really there, but I like the ghostly image better."

Evening Standard, 2007

Tekst 2

- 1p 2 Wat kun je insturen naar de Londonist website, volgens deze tekst?
- A amateuropnames van muziekoptredens in Londen
 - B bewerkte foto's van toeristische attracties in Londen
 - C spannende griezelverhalen die zich in Londen afspeLEN

Bronvermelding

Een opsomming van de in dit examen gebruikte bronnen, zoals teksten en afbeeldingen, is te vinden in het bij dit examen behorende correctievoorschrift, dat na afloop van het examen wordt gepubliceerd.